POETRY.

HONEST JOHN TOMPKINS THE HEDGER AND DICHER.

The following capital old household serap is handed to us by a gentleman who writes it from memory, having heard it repeated in his childhood fifty years ago. It was old then, and its author is not known, but it is well worth reprinting, and the moral it inculcates might profitably be adopted through all time:

Honest John Tompkins, the hedger and dicher,

Although very poor, didn't wish to be richer, Wishes so vain he always prevented By a fortunate habit of being contented.

Though cold was the weather, and dear was the food,

John never was found in a murmuring mood, He was heard very often in words to declare What he could not prevent he'd endeavor to bear.

He said grumbling would make calamity deeper,

But never would bring bread and cheese any cheaper.

If any one injured or treated him ill, John was ever found in good nature still.

For, he said, revenging an injury done, Was making two bad when there need be but one.

Much better Would be if folks wiser and richer.

Would copy John Tompkins the hedger and dicher.

THE BOOK OF LIFE.

"C. S. S." sends the enclosed lines (never before published) which he found in an old family Bible bequeathed to him by their accomplished writ-ter, Caroline Bowles, who, our readers may remember, was married to Southey in his later years, having been long his valued friend, and proving his loving and faithful soother and nurse till he was called away to his rest:

Book of Life to thee I fly When the world weighs heavily, Heavily upon my heart,
And earthly thoughts no peace impart.

Earthly hopes, all hollowness—Earthly joys, all deceitfulness—Earthly praise, a tinsel gain—Earthly pleasure, all pain—Earthly stay, an ebbing wave—Earthly end, the dark cold grave.

Wearily, wearily,
From worldly wastes, so dearly That round me lie—
From trouble, toil, and vanity, From care and strife,
To thee I turn, to thee I fly, Book of Life.

THE HOUR OF PERIL.

The foundations of a gigantic mill were laid upon the banks of a rapid stream in Western New York, and the men in the little village near gathered to raise the massive frame to its place.
Bent after bent was lifted, till the last and heaviest one alone was left. At the word of command, this rose above the strong arms which held the pikes, until it reached what builders call "the pinch in the bent," beyond which it passes with comparative ease to the vertical position, and there it stopped.

The master builder shouted, with alarm: "Lift men, or die!" Every muscle was strained anew, but in vain.
There it hung over the throng, like an engine of swift destruction. Just then three men appeared in the highway, upon the brow of a hill, and the call for help fell on their eyes; they saw the peril, and hastened away with boldly.

The chief workman mounted upon a plate above the trembling company, and in tears again shouted: "Lift men, or die!" The struggle was fruitless—the frame was settling toward the exhausted throng.

Meanwhile the tidings had spread through the village; the women had gathered along the opposite banks of the current, and were anxiously looking up to the imperiled loved ones.

The eye of the builder was turned up at once a moment, and then, with a fresh flood of tears, he exclaimed:
"Mothers, if you would have sons; wives, if you would have husbands; and sisters, if you would have brothers, to-night, come and help us!" With the strong impulse of woman's nature, they rushed across the stream and stood side by side with the dear innates of the deserted homes. Then came the cry of distress once more—"Now, altogether, lift or die!" And they did lift. Up—went the frame. A stroke of the hammer, and all was safe. The reaction confined some of that number to the house for weeks.

We have often thought of the incident when a crises comes to the church of God. The spiritual bent will rise before the power of faith, and then utive two years before it took effect. I feel that according to the power with which I was invested I did as much as lay in my power to bring the Executive and Congress up to the aid of the Union by the employment of those colored people, both in the army and the navy, and everywhere else where they have assisted. Their employment in that capacity enforces upon me a duty. Would I lend my voice and my vote to induce that people to peril their lives in the defence of their country, and then turn them over to the mercy of their enemies? The man that would do it deliberately and knowingly is the meanest of God's creatures.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY, BY C. R. PATTISON.

TO THE FRIENDS OF EQUAL RIGHTS.

Up and be doing. If there was ever a time of peril to our country now is the day and the hour. Unity, peace, prosperity, a happy future, such as has happened to no other people is to be ours to enjoy, or clashing and discord, another tide of inhumanity, another civil war is before us. It is for the people of America through their representatives in Congress to decide which shall be our chosen policy. As one of the body, politics it is for you— for us to say. If the humblest citizen neglects to utter his voice, to give his influence however feeble in this national crisis in behalf of a reconstruction based on justice and equal rights to every citizen of our country, he cannot justify himself before the bar of conscience or the bar of God in the great day of judgment.

Read the first article on the 1st page, "The Hour of Peril." Fellow workers in the great and sublime cause of equal rights, we have reached "the pinch in the bent." Men and brethren, fathers and brothers, mothers and sisters, "lift" or the nation dies—in the triumph of victory. History is full of pregnant and painful lessons where nations have been ruined or their subjects have passed through fearful ordeals because of the perverse failure of their leaders to do right at critical junctures.

"O would that Marvell's self, instead, Could warn the living by the dead, How freedom may be lost, Though won at bloody cost."

What is required is action—immediate action. Congress is disposed to do right. Let us keep the back-bones of our representatives firm and unbent. Presidents and Congresses are our servants. Let the President see that the people are with their representatives and are unwilling to admit again to equal privileges the ex-rebel States, until they shall adopt Republican constitutions and bestow equal rights upon all their citizens.

Petition is the high born prerogative of every citizen. Now is the time to use this prerogative. Let Michigan with the other Northern States, pour a perfect shower of petitions into Congress on this subject. To say nothing of the black population left to the merciless persecution of those who hate them, because they sided with, and fought and bled for the Union, the whites of the South who did the same thing, crushed and persecuted even to the death, appeal to the men of the North and to Congress to save them. Shall we turn a deaf ear to our white self-sacrificing brethren.

Our health is such that we cannot devote very much time to circulating petitions. But this much we will do. We will publish copies of the following petition, ready for circulation at our own expense. They can be had at our office on and after Tuesday morning next. And now how many volunteers to canvass each neighborhood, and district, and ward, for signatures? If you don't get but ten names send them along. Bring them to our office and we will see that they are forwarded to one of our representatives or Senators, at Washington, or send the petitions yourselves accompanied by an earnest letter. Petitions can be sent free of postage. Thus the avenues between the people and their representatives are free as water.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of Liberty."

To the Senate and House of Representatives, of the United States, in Congress assembled.

The undersigned petitioners, citizens of the State of Michigan respectfully represent, that they cannot but view with apprehension and alarm, that condition of affairs in the rebellious States of this Union, which renders the lives and liberties of the loyal citizens, whether white or black, in those States insecure, and punishes them with ostracism and social outlawry; which honors and rewards treason with distinction of office, and power, and manifests a determination to push its old leaders into such commanding positions as shall enable them to again usurp the control of the government, and prostitute it to the purposes of a barbarous despotism.

We earnestly exhort our Senators and Representatives to use their best efforts and votes to prevent the return of any ex-rebel States to their former privileges in the Union, until they have conferred equal rights before the law, upon all and every citizen.

Inasmuch as we cannot obtain indemnity for the past, give the nation ample guarantees for the future.

MARKSAL STATESMAN.

This old and reliable paper has been purchased by Burgess & Bissell. Mr. Lewis the former proprietor has published the paper almost a generation. He retires with all the honors of the craft. Mr. Burgess will be remembered as the former publisher of the Times, in our city, and also as foreman of our office for a brief time. These gentlemen take hold of the matter with spirit. We have no doubt that they will make an able and useful paper. Of course it is radical and right. Success to them.

CURRENT EVENTS.

The world is on the move, as usual. Congress is the centre hub. A bill has passed to restrict the fees of Soldiers' Claim Agents, to $10, and punish with a fine an exactor of a larger one. A bill to enlarge the Freedman's Bureau has passed the Senate by 37 to 10. —Gold 139 1/2.

THE HAVILAND CASE.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The undersigned, residents of Ypsilanti and Augusta, State of Michigan, have known John Leonard for several years, and know him to be a man of good and reliable standing, and has never been suspected of a dishonest trait; the only fault being his habit of once in a great while using liquor to an extreme. That he was late husband to Mrs. Haviland, now of Battle Creek, Michigan. That when she left the children were kept by him, and that he was a kind and generous father to them. We have never known him to maltreat and abuse his children nor allow them to want for anything he could provide. The said Mrs. Haviland having murdered three of her own children, now endeavors to injure his name and good moral character; all statements made by her to that effect we know to be untrue, and she now seems desirous of putting all her crime upon some of her friends, and chiefly upon Mr. Leonard, whom we deem to be innocent and free from all guilt. Signed, LEWIS ALLEN, F. J. FLETCHER, J. H. ANDERSON, AUG. FREEMAN, P. H. BALLARD, E. W. MOORE, C. JOSLIN, LEWIS MOORE, and 63 others.

The following has also been handed in, endorsed by several citizens conversant with the facts.

We believe that it is due to the public and to ourselves, to correct a statement made by Mrs. Haviland alias Leonard, of Battle Creek, whose name has become notorious as the murderess of three of her children. She, the said Mrs. Haviland, has been a resident of this vicinity for some eighteen years. She was of a good family, from Western New York, and her relatives here are amongst our most respectable citizens. She sets forth in her so called confession, that the reason for administering poison to her children, was on account of their showing propensities which she says they inherited from their father, and which she expected would lead them to commit crimes in the future for which they would have to suffer the penalties of the law. She further says she fled from the abuse of a drunken husband, &c. The facts in the case are these. Mrs. Haviland's husband, was known as an honest, upright man, and the habit of his occasionally drinking she was fully apprised of before their marriage, and which so far as is known, never led him to the abuse of his family, as her children will now testify, that he never struck them a blow. Mrs. Haviland had here, prior to her leaving for Battle Creek, a home and forty acres of land, which had been deeded to her and her children after her, by her grandfather. This under the management of her present husband, John Leonard, would have yielded them a comfortable subsistence, had she minded Paul's injunction that "women should be keepers at home, not busy-bodies." Whatever deficiency there was, was generously supplied from his own hard earnings previous to their marriage, until all, amounting to five hundred dollars of his, was consumed. She then forced a sale of the property, by protesting that it was insufficient for their support. —She not getting the avails thereof entirely into her own hands, soon found herself without resource, other than such as Dr. Baker and kindred, spirits afforded her. Thus she deprived herself, children and husband of a home, and him of his children, despite his efforts to recover them, through her own misconduct. She left a home amply provided for, against the advice and entreaty of her friends, for one of poverty and shame among strangers. She lived in the midst of kind friends who repeatedly admonished and remonstrated with her, through a long course of ill-conduct, and to whom she turned a deaf ear. She has shown herself an unnatural mother, by leaving her children from time to time, to the care of any one who might pity them. They always found in their father and step-father their kindest friend, who cared for them at one time for over four months, the youngest of the five being at that time only about two years old. These children were known and pitied by this community and when these three little lifeless forms were brought back to this place slain by a mother's hand, and others than their own mother wept over their little coffins, as they were laid side by side in their wide, deep grave, it is no wonder that humanity felt outraged, and the public indignation against her and her accomplices. The part she has acted in this crime, has been only as a last act in a long course of ill-conduct, the particulars of which a virtuous community would blush to record, and now pity only, for the depravity of her heart seems no longer a virtue. —Particulars of a damaging character could be given, but the parties are unwilling to bring them out, unless compelled in self defence.

Argus & Press.

These creditable exchanges have enlarged their boundaries. They are now eight column papers. The Argus is one of the oldest papers in the County. Mr. Pond the present proprietor and editor has been connected with it a number of years. He is a wide-awake member of the press, and well adapted to make friends. The Argus has sometimes been accused of dealing gently with the opposition and almost standing on Republican ground. It opposed the Leecompton swindle. In the first years of our civil contest it occupied a manly position. Though not as acrimonious as our Contemporary yet we regret to say that it comes clear up to the demands of a sham Democracy in its opposition to investing colored manhood with manhood rights. It favors the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery in the land and approves of the measures of the President good and bad. It is one of those advance Democratic organs that come up to the Republican platform when its advocacy ceases to be any account. We give it the credit of being at heart right, i. e. the editor's convictions are on the side of justice and humanity.
His party claims and interests oppose, but he seems to be glad, when ever a reasonable excuse is offered to break away from these latter and come up to a position from which the Republican party has advanced. When the Republican party shall have secured equal and impartial suffrage for all citizens of this State and Country the Argus under its present management will cordially endorse it, among its foremost defenders, while the Sentinel will continue to snarl and growl.
The Argus has the inside track, in possession of the "loaves and fishes" popularly conducted and we sincerely congratulate it on its prosperity. If not up to our position, we know it will be ere long and we can all ways shake hands with progressive radical Democracy.

The Owsos Press is a sheet conducted on live principles. It keeps well up with local general home and foreign events, radical in its politics. It is well worthy the beautiful city that gives it vitality and prosperity. We remember well the first time paper shared in Owsos, years gone by in 1839 by Edward Ament. He was one of nature's true noble-mens. He sleeps the sleep of death. But his spirit still lives in the Owsos Press. We say to our Owsos friends continue to foster and enlarge your home paper and it will more than return the support given by advancing your commercial, real estate, educational and other essential interests.
